Please add my comments to the public record in favor of stricter regulation of the entertainment industry that creates movies, videos and television programming.

It is no secret that the U.S. is considered the most violent nation in the industrialized world.

When I worked for the Embassy of Korea in Washington, D.C., visiting dignitaries would often refer to this great country as the country of sex and violence. Where did they get that perception? From television. Perception has become a reality.

"The average American child witnesses 100,000 acts of violence and 8,000 murders on television before completing elementary school," Washington state report on youth violence.

I work in public relations and as you might imagine, I favor the principle behind "freedom of speech" but not at the expense of public safety. It is, for example, illegal to yell "fire" in a
